

Promoting highly skilled migrant women in a global knowledge economy

EuMentorSTEM
12-13 September
2019

The conference

The purpose of the conference is to provide a unique venue for academic and practice-policy debate, aiming at advancing theoretical development and empirical knowledge and practice about highly-skilled migration of women, with a specific focus on those women working in male-dominated sectors (e.g., STEM).

We welcome academic and practitioners-oriented contributions taking different disciplinary views on the topic, to increase the variety of disciplines and perspectives represented in the conference and to stimulate dialogue.

The conference is hosted by the Department of Management and the Department of Education Studies of the University of Bologna at the DAMSLab.
